Bedroom fengshui for a really, really small bedroom.?

Image taken on 2007-07-04 15:31:31 by wallyg.

I have a really, really small bedroom at my parents house. I am a student and live in dorm, but i sometimes goes back to my parents house on the weekend. But when i'm home, i don't feel cozy or good to be home, because my bedroom looks plain and boring. So i search the net for decorating ideas, and found fengshui topic's really interesting. However, all the position shown for good fengshui cannot be done because of the lack of space in my bedroom.

I only have 1 window, 1 door, an air conditioner, a wardrobe, no other furniture. I like brown color and i check the fengshui guide color for brown means wood, close to earth, and luckily all my furniture are made from wood with dark color brown. Even my window shades are color dark brown.

I was thinking to paint the wall at east side and west side with dark brown and the north side and south side with more lighter brown color (my current wall paint is white, all four side). What i want to ask is how to arrange my bed position and what other stuff to add into my bedroom.

Additional info, i rarely (very rare) open my windows, only tie the window shade to sides to let the lights to come in (and are seldom home to do it). I am only home to sleep peacefully and no strong lights that can disturb my sleep (let's just say i am home to leave the stress at school.. xD) But my dad always open my bedroom door in the morning and close it in the night.
