What does my dream mean?

Image taken on 2007-07-14 09:35:39 by Erik Eckel.

So this is a description of a dream I had last night:

So, our entire class went to New York City. The girls dorms were really dark and reminded me of a movie theater. The bathroom stalls didn't have walls, even though they did have individual doors so it was just a line of toilets so I saw girl A pee on herself. And then I went into the boys dorms and they were painted yellow, with white furniture, lots of sunlight, and stainless steel appliances. I was really jealous and whined about it, and boy R and boy E said that since the girls had the nicer one last time it was their turn to have it. I then said that it wasn't fair since I hadn't moved here last time. Then I went and kissed boy S on the train. His lips felt like sand. And then, somehow, I realized boy A liked me and so I went into the bathroom and kissed him. Then he said the we needed to talk to someone so we went to see the guidance counselor, who didn't help us until I said I was gonna kill someone (and I was just saying that to get help). Then she just looked on Amazon. And the office was setup like a website. I had to click the home button several times to get there. Everything in the office was covered in fairies and flowers. I had to threaten to tell the counselor's boss that she spent all the money on flowery decorations before she would help me. Then I went outside to a restaurant with boy A and looked for somewhere to kiss him that wasn't too much in the open. This part took place in suburban landscape. I remember seeing a fat man trying to get pushed into the restaurant because he was too big to fit. The whole class was going home the next day but I was staying since my parents rented a room in a fancy hotel that I could never remember the name of.

Sorry if this doesn't make much sense, but I just wanted to know what it meant. Please, serious answers only
Background info:

The day before this dream, but friend and I were talking about girl A behind her back and saying how we don't like her.

I like boy S publicly, a lot

I like boy A secretly and he is kinda dating someone

Boy E really annoys me

I used to like Boy R a teensy bit
